“Operation Khanjar” July 2009

American invaders destroy and search houses, Main Poshteh, Helmand 3 July 2009

Afghanistan's insurgent Taliban movement said Monday they had launched a guerrilla operation to thwart a major assault by newly deployed US Marines on their Helmand strongholds. Operation Foladi Jal, Pashtu for "iron net", would teach the Marines "a lesson". Taliban spokesman Yousuf Ahmadi told AFP by telephone from an unknown location.

"In response to Operation Khanjar by the invading forces, we have launched Operation Foladi Jal," Ahmadi said.

"Their Khanjar will get stuck in our Foladi Jal," the rebel spokesman said.

"In this operation we'll teach them a lesson so they will never again dare to come into our areas," he said.

The operation would include improvised bomb explosions and "hit-and-run guerrilla attacks", Ahmadi said.

"We will not engage them in front battles. We would rather hit them by mines and guerrilla attacks," he said.

"But we're always there, our fighters are from the people and are among the people. We look for our chances. Each time there's a chance to hit the enemy, we'll hit them and go back among the people," he said.

REPORT: Details of Martyrdom-seeking Operations in Khost City

Mujahideen of the Islamic Emirate of Afghanistan launched surprising martyrdom-seeking operations against some important security and military targets in Khost. A total of 15 Mujahideen took part in these operations.

Military hospital of the Khost province was targeted. This hospital houses police force and has been turned into administration center for three districts. The provincial guesthouse was also targeted where it was expected that a large governmental gathering would be held today. The guesthouse is situated inside the department of police of Khost province. Similarly, Mujahideen attacked the compound of the provincial high court.

At first, a Mujahid detonated a vehicle packed with explosives at the main gate of the military hospital, killing or injuring 20 soldiers. Then three martyrdom-seekers captured the building of the provincial high court in order to target the police department from there. A martyrdom-seeker detonated his vest at the main gate of the department of police, killing and injuring numerous police. Other brave martyrdom-seekers stormed the provincial guesthouse. Armed confrontation continued for three and a half hours. Many soldiers and officials of the enemy were killed and left scattered. Mujahideen used rocket-propelled grenades Ak-47, missiles, hand-grenades etc. The enemy has been taking dead bodies and the injured from the compound of the department of police in Khost.

The Mujahideen proved that they can take the death to the doors of the high-ranking officials of the stooge regime. They are not safe anywhere. The enemy is shocked and paralyzed.

These are the most successful operations according to the organizer of the operations. He told this website that the enemy is trying to play down its losses and casualties. This is the routine of the new interior minister M. H. Atmar since his nomination as minister, exaggerating the Mujahideen losses while playing down the surrogate regime's.

These surprising and shocking operations were conducted under the leadership of martyr Maulavi Malang. The following martyrdom-seekers realized their goal of martyrdom. Faridullah, Mullah Mohammad Rasul, Shah Faisal, Abdul Wali, Qari Shah Mohammad, Shamsul Haq and Mohammad Nabi. The Islamic Emirate of Afghanistan will flabbergast the enemy with more shocking operations. Report by Zabihullah Mujahid
